

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction: Why Comics? Sandra Eckard	ix
1 Superman Made “Real”: Teaching the Hero Cycle with Kingdom Come Carissa Pokorny-Golden and Karen Sahaydak	1
2 The Man with Identities: Utilizing Daredevil as an Artifact for Literary Analysis Alex Romagnoli	23
3 Who is the Greatest Superhero?: Using Comics to Explore the Concept of Heroism Gian S. Pagnucci	37
4 Truth, Justice, and the American Way: Exploring American Identity throughout History in Superman Narratives J. Eric Hasty	65
5 Who We Are vs. Who We Wish to Be: Examining Heroism through Comics and Canonical Literature Eric Federspiel and Luke Rodesiler	81
6 Visualizing the Hero Complex: Using Batman: Year One for Visual and Character Analysis Mike P. Cook and Jeffrey S. J. Kirchoff	95

7 Teaching the Body of the Nation: Captain America and Masculinity	115
Lee Easton
About the Authors	133