

Contents

Introduction	I
SIKA A. DAGBOVIE-MULLINS AND ERIC L. BERLATSKY
Part I Superheroes in Black and White
1 Guess Who's Coming Home? Mixed Metaphors of Home in Spider-Man's Comic and Cinematic Homecomings	27
SIKA A. DAGBOVIE-MULLINS
2 The Ride of Valkyrie against White Supremacy: Tessa Thompson's Casting in Thor: Ragnarok	46
JASMINE MITCHELL
3 "Which World Would You Rather Live In?" The Anti-utopian Superheroes of Gary Jackson's Poetry	64
CHRIS GAVALER
4 Flash of Two Races: Incest, Miscegenation, and the Mixed-Race Superhero in The Flash Comics and Television Show	81
ERIC L. BERLATSKY

Part II Metaphors of/and Mixedness

- 5 “Let Yourself Just Be Whoever You Are!” Decolonial Hybridity and the Queer Cosmic Future in Steven Universe 105
CORRINE E. COLLINS
- 6 The Hulk and Venom: Warring Blood Superheroes 120
GREGORY T. CARTER
- 7 Monsters, Mutants, and Mongrels: The Mixed-Race Hero in Monstress 138
CHRIS KOENIG-WOODYARD
- 8 Examining Otherness and the Marginal Man in DC’s Superman through Mixed-Race Studies 158
KWASU DAVID TEMBO

Part III Multiethnic Mixedness (or Mixed-Race Intersections)

- 9 Talented Tensions and Revisions: The Narrative Double Consciousness of Miles Morales 179
JORGE J. SANTOS JR.
- 10 “They’re Two People in One Body”: Nested Sovereignties and Mixed-Race Mutations in FX’s Legion 199
NICHOLAS E. MILLER
- 11 Into the Spider-Verse and the Commodified (Re)imagining of Afro-Rican Visibility 220
ISABEL MOLINA-GUZMÁN
- 12 Truth, Justice, and the (Ancient) Egyptian Way: DC’s Doctor Fate and the Arab Spring 243
ADRIENNE RESHA
- Acknowledgments 261
- Notes on Contributors 263
- Index 267