

Contents

Acknowledgments — VII

1 Introduction — 1

2 Alternative Comics and Artistic Styles — 9

- 2.1 Acknowledging the Past – Acknowledging New Vistas — 10
- 2.2 Auteurs, Autography, Auteurgraphy — 19
- 2.3 Elements of Style — 26
- 2.4 Distinctiveness Embedded in the Field of Study — 40

3 (Un)characteristic Traits and Lines in Art Spiegelman’s Maus (1980–1991) — 48

- 3.1 Maus Contextualized — 49
- 3.2 (Un)characteristic Visual Character Traits — 59
- 3.3 (Un)characteristic Lines — 76
- 3.4 Iconic Status: The Mouse beyond Maus — 86

4 Communicating beyond Panels and Pages: Alison Bechdel’s Dykes to Watch Out For (1983–2008) — 94

- 4.1 Drawing Style and Lettering in DtWOF — 95
- 4.2 Visible and Outspoken Communities — 108
- 4.3 Stylistically Engaging with Comics and Their Readers — 121
- 4.4 Between Fiction and Self-Portraiture — 129

5 Jason Lutes’ Berlin (1996–2018) as a Stylistic Showroom — 140

- 5.1 The Critical Reception of Berlin — 141
- 5.2 Playing with Bimediality: Encounters of Text and Picture — 145
- 5.3 Lutes’ Rendition of the ligne claire — 158
- 5.4 Creative Labor in and beyond Berlin — 174

6 Ongoing Conversations — 184

Works Cited — 191

Index of Artists — 219